Welcome to Villa Rica, Georgia !

Villa Rica is home to the first Gold Strike in Georgia and is home to Coca-Cola legend Asa Candler and Gospel Music founder Thomas A. Dorsey.

Around 1826, farmers and gold miners began to settle on a ridge dividing the waters of the Tallapoosa River and Sweetwater Creek. The first gold miners to this area were from Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey.

William Hix built a tavern and general supply store and called the settlement Hixtown and was incorporated in 1830. One mile south lay Chevestown and was owned by Allison Cheves. By 1832 Hixtown had over 2,000 residents, 60% of Carroll County's population with 300 men working the more than 19 active gold mines.

With the Georgia-Pacific Railroad extension to the area in 1882 the residents of Hixtown rolled houses and stores on logs pulled by horses to relocate near the railroad. The residences of Hixtown and Chevestown decided to establish a new town and named it Villa Rica, translated to "city of gold" in Spanish.

By 1905 Villa Rica included twenty businesses, seven churches, a bank, a hotel, a newspaper and a school with a faculty of five. An early entrepreneur was Asa Candler, who brought notoriety to the city when he bottled the first Coca Cola here in 1897.

In 1899 singer and composer Thomas A. Dorsey was born in Villa Rica and later went on to write over 400 compositions during his career. Dorsey is best know for "Take My Hand, Precious Lord," which he wrote in 1932. Today he is recognized worldwide as "The Father of Gospel Music."

With our strategic location between Birmingham, Alabama and Atlanta, Georgia, Carroll County is home to many growing businesses including Walmart Distribution, Southwire Corporation and Tanner Medical Center.
